On clear winter nights, the Frostwood Star Club climbs from the village green to the little observatory on the roof of the lodge, charting the sky as it goes. The snow clouds have smudged their charts. 180 skies need their stars put back in place before the club's winter star ledger is complete. Every puzzle has exactly one solution, and every one can be solved by logic alone, with no guessing.

BEFORE THE SKY CLEARS

HOW TO PLAY

Each puzzle is a patch of night sky, drawn as a square grid divided by thick lines into regions. Your job is to put stars in some of the squares, following three rules:

- * Every row and every column holds the same number of stars: one star in Parts One and Two, two stars in Parts Three and Four. The number is printed above each puzzle.
- * Every region (the areas outlined by thick lines) holds that same number of stars.
- * Stars never touch: no two stars may be in neighbouring squares, not even diagonally.

Useful Tricks

- * Mark the empties. Put a small dot in every square that cannot hold a star. When you place a star, dot its eight neighbours, and when a row, column or region has all its stars, dot the rest of it.
- * Last squares standing. When a row, column or region has only as many open squares as the stars it still needs, they are all stars.
- * Small regions first. List the ways a small region (or a nearly full row) can still hold its stars. A square that every way uses is a star; a square that every way touches is empty.
- * Squeezed regions. If a region's open squares all lie in one row, that region's star is that row's star, so the rest of the row is empty. The same goes for columns, and in reverse (a row whose open squares all lie in one region).
- * Counting across several regions. If two regions fit entirely inside two rows (in two-star puzzles: they need four stars and the two rows hold four), every other square in those two rows is empty. It works for three regions in three rows, and so on.
- * What if? In the Expert puzzles, you may have to suppose a square holds a star, follow the consequences, and see a row or region run out of room. Then you know that square is empty.

LET’S CHART THE SKY

A WORKED EXAMPLE

This small 5×5 sky has one star per row, column and region. Rows are numbered from the top and columns from the left.

- 1. The one-square region. The region in the very middle (row 3, column 3) is a single square, so it must hold that region’s star. Dot its eight neighbours, and the rest of row 3 and column 3, because they now have their star.
- 2. The top-right region has only two open squares left: row 1, columns 4 and 5. Whichever one gets the star, it will touch the square in row 2, column 5. So that square can’t be a star. Dot it.
- 3. Row 2 now has just one open square, in column 1, so that’s a star. It fills the big top-left region and column 1, so dot the rest of both. That is the middle picture.
- 4. The bottom-left region has only one open square left, in row 5, column 2. Star. Row 5 is now full, so dot the rest of it.
- 5. The right-hand region is left with one open square, in row 4, column 5. Star. Column 5 is full, so the top-right region’s star goes in row 1, column 4. Every row, column and region now has one star, and no two stars touch.

Solutions are at the back of the book.

THANK YOU FOR STARGAZING

STARS OVER FROSTWOOD

If you enjoyed charting the winter sky, a short review helps other puzzlers find the book. The Star Club reads every one, usually by the fire in the lodge after the dome is closed for the night.

ALSO BY BLAKE LA PIERRE

A Frostwood Puzzle Book

The Thief Stayed the Night

A snowbound hotel mystery puzzle book. Twelve cozy elimination cases at the Frostwood Lodge, at the top of the line.

Frostwood Express

200 Train Tracks logic puzzles. Lay the railway that climbs from the valley to the lodge, from the foothills to the summit.
